FDH Draft Philosophy: Value With Every Pick!

We at FantasyDrafthelp.com always emphasize the wisdom of our VIP approach to drafting: information and process lead to value. Of course, value is the single most important component of drafting or auctions. Even in the fantasy industry, this point is often overlooked.

In most cases, titles are won by patiently accruing value throughout a draft or auction.

During the Information stage, fantasy owners compile information about players at individual positions. Process involves comparison of players across all of the positions.

We put a tremendous amount of hard work into our draft board, and you do as well. As such, you need to trust the fruits of these labors and adhere to your draft board as much as possible. The surest way to be able to extract maximum value is to prepare extensively ahead of time and then refrain from jumping around on the board on Draft Day. Approach the draft with an actuarial mindset, determined to squeeze maximum value out of every pick, and you will be poised for success.

Draft Board Decoder

The FantasyDrafthelp.com draft board contains all the relevant information you need right at your fingertips. For example, in terms of QB, RB, WR and TE:

^ Players are color-coded by their value by round in a 12-team draft. 1st round is gold, 2nd round silver, 3rd round bronze, 4th round orange and 5th round light blue.

^ The "Exp" column displays where each player placed in an "experts consensus board" of top fantasy magazines and "$" signifies auction value.

^ The "Stat" column shows how each player performed on our standard deviation from the mean statistic in 2014 (stat details on Page 4).

^ Players in bold scored better than the statistical mean in all categories measured on our draft board.

^ 2014 yardage and TD totals are listed, along with rankings for each and rankings in the aforementioned "Stat" category. Also, as a new to the WR and TE boards, "TarCon" measures the completion percentage of targets to each player.

^ "Bye" denotes each player's bye week.

FantasyDrafthelp.com Suggested League Guidelines

Many leagues start 1 QB, 2 RB, 2 WR, 1TE, 1 K and some D/ST combination. Some leagues allow the TE position to be WR or TE (in which case, only a few TEs merit any consideration) and some have a "flex" position, which is generally 1 additional RB or WR. With leagues who utilize defense, some deploy a team D/ST unit and some use individual D players.

The most common scoring system is a variation of the following: 4 points per passing TD, 1 point per 25 yards passing, 1 point per passing 2-point PAT, 6 points per receiving or rushing TD, 1 point per 10 yards rushing or receiving, 2 points per rushing or receiving 2-point PAT, 2 points per "big play touchdown" (50 or more yards), 1 point per kicking PAT, 3 points per FG, with a 1-point bonus at 45 yards, a 2-point bonus at 50 yards and a 3-point bonus at 55 yards, 6 points per defensive or special teams TD, 1 point per interception, sack or fumble recovered and 2 points per safety. In leagues that award 6 points for passing TDs, QBs are worth much more.

Evaluating Production Across a Spectrum: Lessons of "The Stat"

Our "Stat" category on our draft board calculates the standard deviation from the mean in all statistical categories. In simple English, imagine a spectrum going across from left to right, with negative numbers on the left side, a "zero" in the middle and positive numbers on the right side. We utilize this statistic for baseball, basketball, hockey and NASCAR as well as football. A player's performance in each category is plotted on one of these spectrums, with the most valuable players putting up most of their numbers on the most of their numbers on the positive side. Then, we add up the totals of every category, positive and negative. By using this tool, we can identify not merely how they performed, but how valuable their performances were in each category. Truly, this statistic serves as the ultimate baseline for the previous season's production.

Don't Be That Guy

^ Don't be that guy who is unprepared and whines in the mid to late rounds that everyone worth taking is already gone. They're not; you're just unprepared.

^ Don't be that guy who doesn't properly understand your league's scoring system. League setups are like snowflakes; no two are the same. Our draft board is configured to conform to a fairly basic scoring system, but your league could have some quirks that would force you to make adaptations to our board. Be aware.

^ Don't be that guy who doesn't pay enough attention and selects players who are already off the board. It's impolite to your leaguemates and it will invariably break your concentration when everyone howls at you and you've got to go back to Square One on a backup pick. To ensure that you are aware of everything that is going on during your draft, utilize a "grid" to track all teams, with the number of rounds going down the left side and the teams listed along the top.

^ Don't be that guy who approaches the draft like it's a night of epic decision-making. If you've done your homework, it's not. You merely find out where you're drafting and you "let the draft come to you." Trust your draft board, abide by it and don't overrule your rankings lightly. Weeks of preparation will trump minutes of frantic guessing anytime.

2015 Fantasy Overview

^ Rarely are there any notes for a specific year as important as this one: having a high pick in the first round of a standard serpentine draft this year is not only unhelpful, it is actively counter-productive. With Le'Veon Bell (who would have been a pretty easy #1 overall pick otherwise) starting the season on the sidelines for three games, there is a great amount of parity most of the way through the first round (notwithstanding some of our misguided colleagues in the industry who still put him on top). It is almost impossible to extract value from a high first-round pick. The first real break in value doesn't come until about midway through the third round, which of course means with the divergence of opinion typical in drafts that even those drafting late in the first and third rounds have no excuse for failing to nail their first three picks. The obvious lesson for those in auction leagues is not to overbid for any of the "first-round-equivalent" talents. This year more than any other, let your auction or draft come to you.

^ Our draft board at QB is shockingly identical in form to that of a year ago: nine starter-worthy QBs, but three who really separate themselves in terms of value. Even two of those three (Rodgers and P Manning) are the same, with Luck replacing Brees on that tier.

^ RB1 is a bit deeper this year than in 2014, but the unfortunate tradeoff is that there are more question marks than usual among these players. RB2 is pretty similar in terms of depth to 2014.

^ WR1 is about as deep as it was in 2014, with WR2 boasting more talent than then (or most other years, for that matter), but the most notable difference from any other season in recent memory comes in the overall slotting of wideouts. We have four of them in the top ten overall players this year, a sharp break from the year-in, year-out conventional wisdom that says that the first round should always be sharply dominated by RBs. This is reflective of the explosiveness of the top tier of WRs, as well as the aforementioned unusual amount of questions swirling around the top tier of RBs.

^ TE1 is deeper than in 2014, with seven players on that level as opposed to five. Even as Gronk occupies a tier of his own, as does Graham behind him, it's indicative of more depth at the position, since two of last year's smaller TE1 crop, Cameron and V Davis, were bumped down the board in 2015.

FDH College Rankings & Team Draft Guidelines

On the draft board, the numbers in parentheses are taken from a poll consensus. Take 6 owners and conduct a 7-round standard draft. Points will be assigned at 4 intervals: when the first College Football Playoff poll is released on October 27, when the poll is released on November 17, when the final poll is released on December 6 and when the final AP poll is released after the national title game. The October 27 poll accounts for 20% of the total score (with the exception of the bonus points, mentioned below), the November 17 poll accounts for 20% of the total score, the December 6 poll accounts for 20% of the total score and the final AP poll accounts for 40% of the total score.

For the first three polls, scoring is as follows: 1st place (50 points), 2nd place (45 points), 3rd place (43 points), 4th place (42 points), 5th place (41 points), 6th place (38 points), 7th place (37 points), 8th place (36 points), 9th place (35 points), 10th place (34 points), 11th place (30 points), 12th place (29 points), 13th place (28 points), 14th place (27 points), 15th place (26 points), 16th place (22 points), 17th place (21 points), 18th place (20 points), 19th place (19 points), 20th place (18 points), 21st place (13 points), 22nd place (12 points), 23rd place (11 points), 24th place (10 points), 25th place (9 points).

Points are doubled in the final poll, since it accounts for twice the point total of each of the three previous ones. Additional bonuses are awarded for the following accomplishments:

25 points for winning the National Championship Game, 15 points for winning the national semifinals, 10 points for earning a spot in the semifinals, 10 points for a conference title (or piece of one, for conferences without a championship game), 12 points for winning a "Big 6" non-semifinal bowl game, 6 points for earning a spot in a "Big 6" non-semifinal bowl, 5 points for winning a non-"Big 6" bowl game and 10 points for having the Heisman Trophy winner on one of your teams.

2015 NFL Draft Preview

It's rare for a national championship team to make such a small impact on the NFL Draft, as Ohio State will this year. But that's because, shades of their 1968 national championship squad, their true strength was in their sophomore class and the best among them, DE Joey Bosa, should be the best defensive player in the 2016 crop. Another teammate from that draft class, RB Ezekiel Elliott, should go higher than many at his position in the modern era. And redshirt junior QB Cardale Jones, having vaulted from obscurity in three legendary games, should be the first passer overall, edging out two Big Ten cohorts for that honor, Penn State's Christian Hacken-berg and Michigan State's Connor Cook. Other potential franchise players may include Florida CB Vernon Hargreaves and three Mississippi standouts, OT Laremy Tunsil, WR Laquon Treadwell and DE Robert Nkemdiche.

FDH Non-Fantasy Ranking of the Top 32 Players in the NFL

NOTE: As opposed to our fantasy rankings, these do not pertain to statistical accomplishments, but rather are reflections of overall excellence and worth on the gridiron. 32 players were selected to represent an average of one per team in the league. Numbers in parentheses represent where the players ranked in 2014.

Players listed underneath the Top 32 were on the list in 2014. Additionally, Kiko Alonso, NaVorro Bowman and Josh Gordon would have been on the list were it not for availability issues. Our link on Page 1 is to FDH Lounge Mini-Episode #586, which featured FDH Senior Editor Jason Jones analyzing the list.

2015 FDH Mock Draft Analysis

NOTE: This draft was conducted on August 1, 2015. As such, Tim and Samm were unlucky enough to end up with Foster and Suisham, respectively, before they got hurt.

ROUND 1: There were few real surprises. The pattern was interesting, with 6 of the first 7 picks being RBs and only one of the last 5.
ROUND 2: Samm got the best value by far with Megatron in the second half of the round. She ended up going WR-WR, contrasting to Tim's RB/QB combo through two rounds and Ben's WR/TE pair.
ROUND 3: 4QBs went here, keeping the run going after the top-shelf options vaporized in the second round. Murray gave Rick great value.
ROUND 4: Ingram and Forsett provided sublime RB value for Tim and Russ, respectively. The adventurous Mike V is betting on a breakthrough campaign for Cooks.
ROUND 5: Bennett dropped nicely for Rick, as Randle did for Mike V.
ROUND 6: Mike V and Russ finally got in on the QBs, with Rivers and Stafford, respectively – both potentially nice values.
ROUND 7: Jeff and Mike V ended up with the last players on the FDH Top 60. Russ tried to make up for going late on his 1st QB by going early on his 2nd! But then Tim, Rick, Kyle and Mike P followed suite with a 2nd slinger!
ROUNDS 8-12: Unsurprisingly, the K and D/ST picks fell here, largely late. Some of the other interesting picks included WR K White, QB Bradford, WR V Jackson, RB D Cobb and WR V Cruz.

FDH Best Games of the 2015 NFL Season

1 Seattle at Green Bay (Week 2, NBC Sunday Night Football) Two top-tier squads who played a game for the ages in the NFC Championship Game must each deal with unbelievable heartbreak from the end of their seasons.

2 New England at Denver (Week 12, NBC Sunday Night Football) Every time that Brady and Manning meet could be the last.

3 New England at Indianapolis (Week 6, NBC Sunday Night Football) At home, neither the Colts' spirits nor the footballs will be deflated.

4 Pittsburgh at New England (Week 1, NBC Thursday Night Football Opener) The Super Bowl champs face a team that they have dominated in big games in the Belichick/Brady era, but is nonetheless on a short list of AFC teams who can stop them.

5 Dallas at Green Bay (Week 14, FOX) Two traditional powers rehash their tremendous playoff showdown.

6 Philadelphia at New England (Week 13, FOX) The league's most successful coach faces the most eccentric.

7 Pittsburgh at Seattle (Week 12, CBS) After two Super Bowl appearances in the past two seasons, the Seahawks are always intriguing against a potential opponent in the big game.

8 Seattle at Baltimore (Week 14, NBC Sunday Night Football) See above.

9 New England at Dallas (Week 5, CBS) "America's Team" faces "America's Most Successful Team of the 21st Century."

10 Seattle at Dallas (Week 8, FOX) The Cowboys provided one of the biggest shocks of the 2014 season when they manhandled Seattle physically.

11 Denver at Indianapolis (Week 9, CBS) As with the Brady-Manning showdowns, the next time that Peyton faces his old team could always be the last.

12 Green Bay at Denver (Week 8, NBC Sunday Night Football) This is an obvious potential Super Bowl preview.

13 Baltimore at Denver (Week 1, CBS) A case could be made that the Broncos still haven't fully recovered from the Ravens lifting the Super Bowl from their grasp three years ago.

14 Indianapolis at Pittsburgh (Week 13, NBC Sunday Night Football) Two perennial AFC playoff teams could each be in the other's way again this season.

15 New England at New York Giants (Week 10, CBS) We're about due for the third Eli-Brady Super Bowl matchup!

16 Denver at Pittsburgh (Week 15, CBS) The Tim Tebow playoff game four years ago actually started this most recent run of success in Denver.

17T Dallas at Philadelphia (Week 2, FOX) The DeMarco Murray signing probably elevated this rivalry to the level of the league's most heated.

17T Philadelphia at Dallas (Week 9, NBC Sunday Night Football)

19 Detroit at Seattle (Week 4, ESPN Monday Night Football) Rarely does Seattle face a front seven anywhere near their level.

20 Seattle at Cincinnati (Week 5, FOX) As with the Pittsburgh and Baltimore games, it's a cross-conference game of intrigue for the Seahawks.

21 New Orleans at Indianapolis (Week 7, FOX) The Super Bowl 44 rematch carries with it the promise of great aerial offense.

22 Philadelphia at Detroit (Week 12, FOX/Thanksgiving) Two teams who've recently emerged in the NFC postseason picture will both be fighting for position.

23 Kansas City at Green Bay (Week 3, ESPN Monday Night Football) The Super Bowl 1 rematch features Andy Reid going up against the system that he was brought up in with the Packers.

24T Seattle at San Francisco (Week 7, CBS/NFL Network Thursday Night Football) The remnants of what was the league's best rivalry will still carry intrigue because of the raw feelings between the franchises.

24T San Francisco at Seattle (Week 11, FOX)
